All-Nighters, The Endless Cycle

Story

Let's just jump to the part where most students are probably either stressing and pulling allnighters due to their final projects. I know I am and yet here I am typing something out for my project when honestly it's taking a bit more time that it should. It's been stressful this quarter for all of us and yet we somehow make it through all the emptiness and pain that has embodied this quarter along with darkness and other things that have made this one of the most difficult quarters this year. We're all struggling but we need to remember that we shouldn't subject ourselves to this endless cycle and push for more of a positive, that way you would feel less tired, and I have no idea what I'm writing about but I am almost done.
