

Concept 1

In concept 1, I wanted to explore more of the practical idea of what I want Re-Story to be. I want the site to work both privately and collaboratively. Being able to share your stories but also have the choice to be able to collaborate to make a story with others as well. This moodboard shows the creative process between sharing and collaborating.

Concept 2

In this concept I was more towards an interactive interface or the interactive part I had in mind. Going off of the main concept of unity by bringing a common thread of stories has connection. I then used that to think of a interface that took that connectivity and thought of this sort of circle and thin line ideas.
