Paper Prototyping

In the paper prototyping session, the feedback given was good in progression of the project. Upon the first session, I ran into someone doing a similar project and share insight on how the interface idea could be an issue to having tabs on the mobile version of the project. In the second session, I found that a more forum base look is more better for the clear and easy to use look rather than an abstract, though the abstract attracted more due to the design and overall look of what the project could be. Furthermore, the ideas of using the abstract look to have connection with tags in the project pushed the idea forward.
